

Greetings from the Camp Manager

One of my favorite things to do in all the world is to go flying! The first time I flew solo was without a doubt one of the most exciting times in my life. Every aspect of flying is a thrill. I love the challenge of getting and making sure everything is just right as you go through the preflight check-list. I love the moment your wheels leave the runway and from that very moment you are on to new heights!

Now I know that some of you reading this are thinking that you like having your feet firmly planted on the ground. I completely understand and know that God made us all different. In a spiritual sense, though, I believe that God is encouraging all of us on to new heights as we start a new year and I believe the challenges and the rewards can be very exciting!

Perhaps this new year we all need to concentrate on our preflight check-list before we start each day. Ephesians 6 gives the specifics on the equipment while Galatians 5 outlines the results we should be looking to obtain. And while almost nothing is more gratifying than a perfect touchdown at the end of a flight, the same holds true as we line up our lives properly according to God's will at the end of each day.

There are always challenges and the wind is always ready to blow, but my challenge to you this new year is to make God your pilot and don't be left with your feet stuck in the mud.

On to New Heights,

Thank You to all of the Camp Supporters
